FASHIONS FOR SPRING

THE NEW YORK TIMES, MARCH 19

One of the models reproduced is this evening gown and cape of breadths of old blue satin and insertions of wide black lace. The trimmings about the throat and waist are withered roses in dull shades.

Spring Fashions reproduced from photographs of models taken in the studios of the leading creators of fashions in Paris will be shown in the Rotogravure-Picture Section of The New York Times, Sunday, March 19. The designers represented include the most noted in the French Capital.

Three pages, twenty-five illustrations, including gowns for evening wear, draped daytime frocks, street dresses and hats. Also one page of American Fashions designed by modistes of New York.

Massachusetts War Memorial to Be Erected at St.

NO war memorial to America's dead that has yet been proposed or erected abroad excels in beauty and impressiveness the one shown on these pages. It is to stand at St. Mihiel, France, and is to commemorate the Massachusetts dead who fell in the war. The monument is the joint design of Daniel C. French and Henry Bacon, the latter of whom is the architect of the Lincoln Memorial at Washington. The Massachusetts Memorial is to be erected on a site which includes approximately ten acres. The general idea in the selection of the site was the securing of a space flanked by groves of trees, in front of the rock, which will form the background for the memorial. Steps and terraces lead up to the beautiful figure which stands with outstretched arms over its dead, symbolized by the recumbent figure draped in the Stars and Stripes. The seal of the State of Massachusetts ends the series of names of the dead.

OIL-FLOODED TOWN

The discovery of oil at Long Beach, Cal., has caused derricks to be erected close to palatial dwellings. Streets have been flooded with the rushing oil and gardens changed into black, oily pools. This $200,000 house is now used as working offices for the oil company.

ILLUMINATED PALACE

Ceremonies of great pomp and splendor attended the visit of the Prince of Wales to Mysore, India. There were great processions in his honor and the Oriental love of gorgeous spectacle found full expression. Especially notable was the illumination of the Maharajah's palace at night. It was a vision of dazzling beauty.

Sad and Serious Faces That Gather Around the Gaming Tables at Monte Carlo

TYPICAL GROUP AT ROULETTE IN GREATEST GAMBLING INSTITUTION IN THE WORLD

In this drawing by an English artist can be found an interesting study in physiognomy. The scene is the famous Casino at Monte Carlo, and the special table shown is that at which roulette is being played. Among the players watching the spinning of the fateful little ball are types of both sexes and all ages except extreme youth, and almost uniformly all indications of gaiety and pleasure are missing. The faces are tense, drawn, bored or sad—but happiness is conspicuous by its absence.

ARTHUR JAMES BALFOUR
Possible Premier in the event of Lloyd George's resignation.

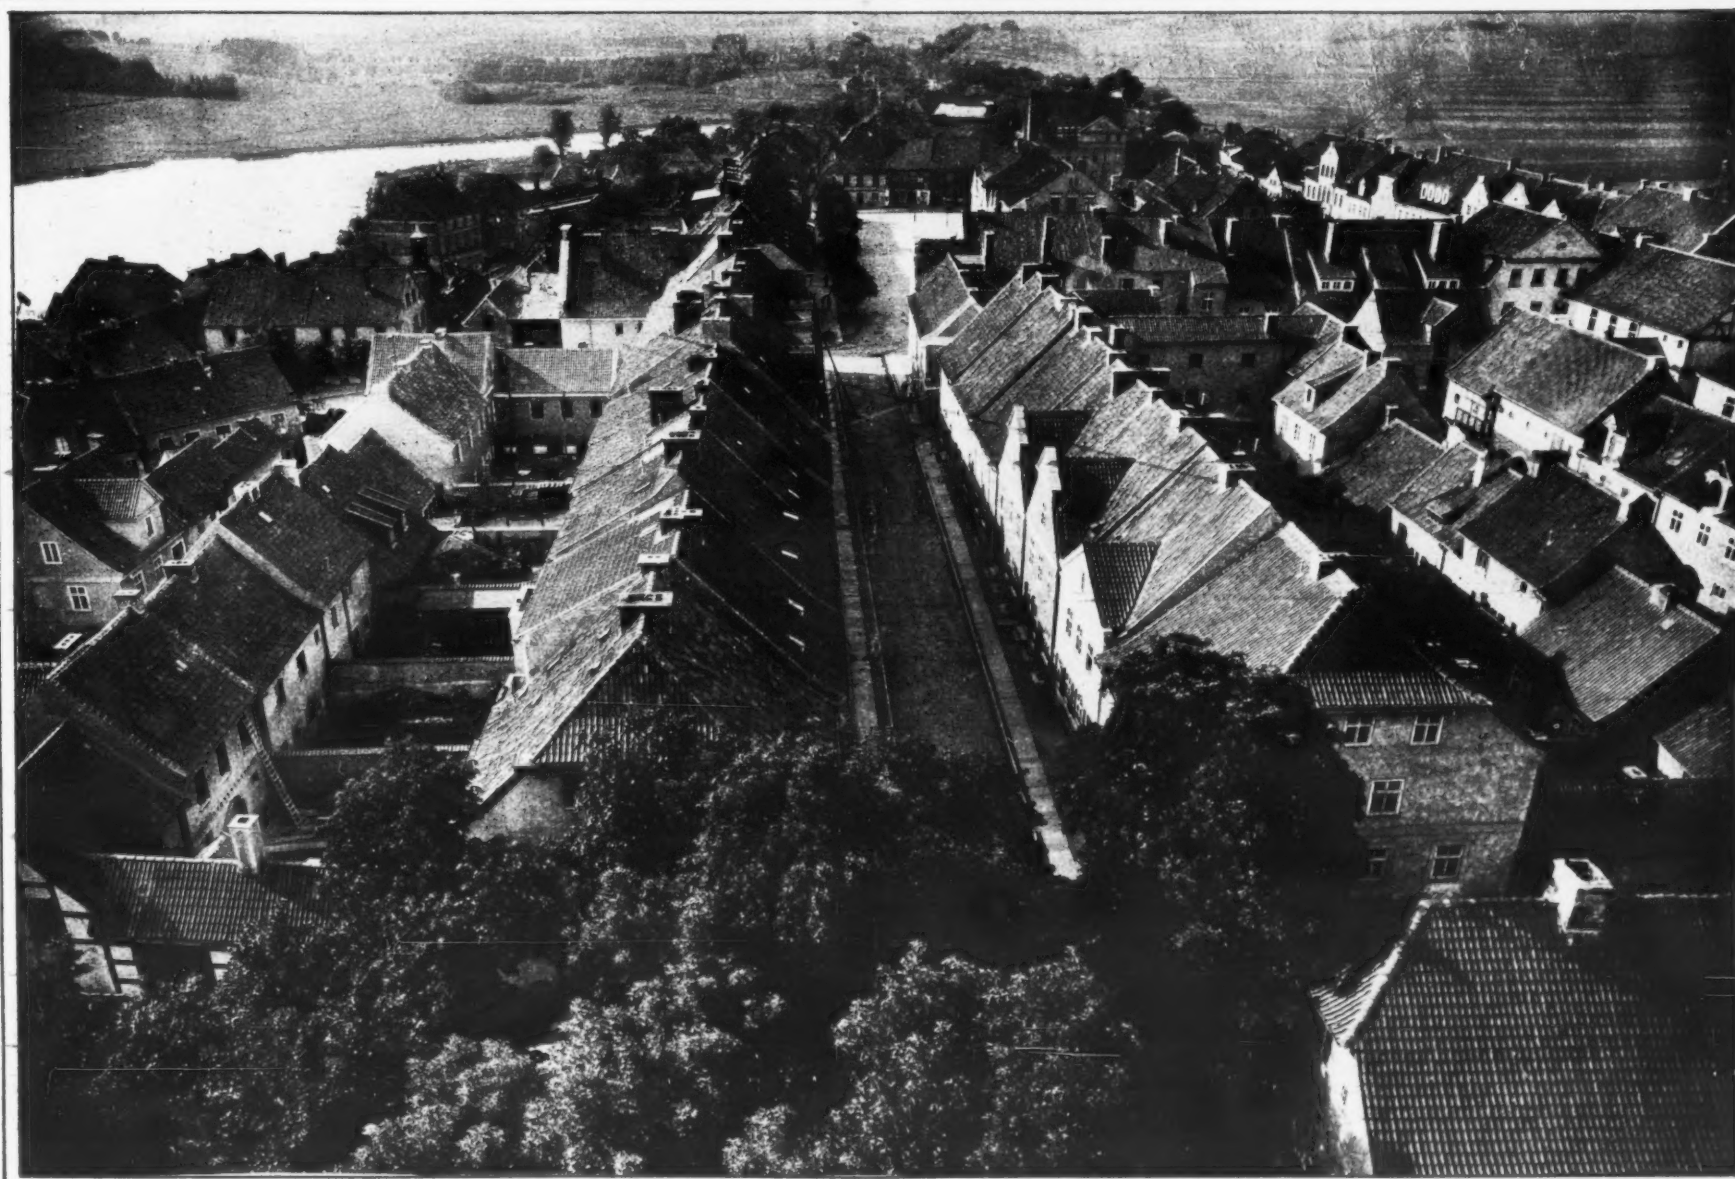

FOR some weeks past Premier Lloyd George has been threatening to resign as leader of the Coalition Party. This has been due, as stated, to the activity of a large part of the Unionist Party, which, under the leadership of Sir George Younger, has grown restive under the control of the Premier and is striving to break away and act independently. Considerable consternation has been caused in the ranks of the Unionists who are still loyal to the Premier, and earnest efforts have been made to force the recalcitrants to remain within the party ranks. Austen Chamberlain has been active in this work, and at latest reports has met with a certain measure of success. At all events, the resignation of Lloyd George seems to have been deferred and may not materialize, if at all, until after the meeting of the Genoa Conference, which is scheduled to open on April 10. It is said that Lloyd George is counting upon the successful outcome of that conference to crown his work and thus enable him to resign under favorable circumstances, or, if he chooses to continue in political life, to furnish him with a fait accompli on which he could ask the verdict of his countrymen at the polls. Balfour has been mentioned as a possible successor in the event of his resignation.

Reconstruction of Devastated East Prussia

TOWN IN EAST PRUSSIA AFTER THE RUSSIAN INVASION SWEEPED OVER IT

At the beginning of the war the Russians, with surprising celerity, overran the border of East Prussia and despite desperate fighting on the part of the Germans forced them back. The roads were flooded with refugees fleeing before the advance of the Cossack cavalry and the population of the province was thrown into panic. The devastation wrought is shown by this town, where the houses have been reduced to masses of debris.

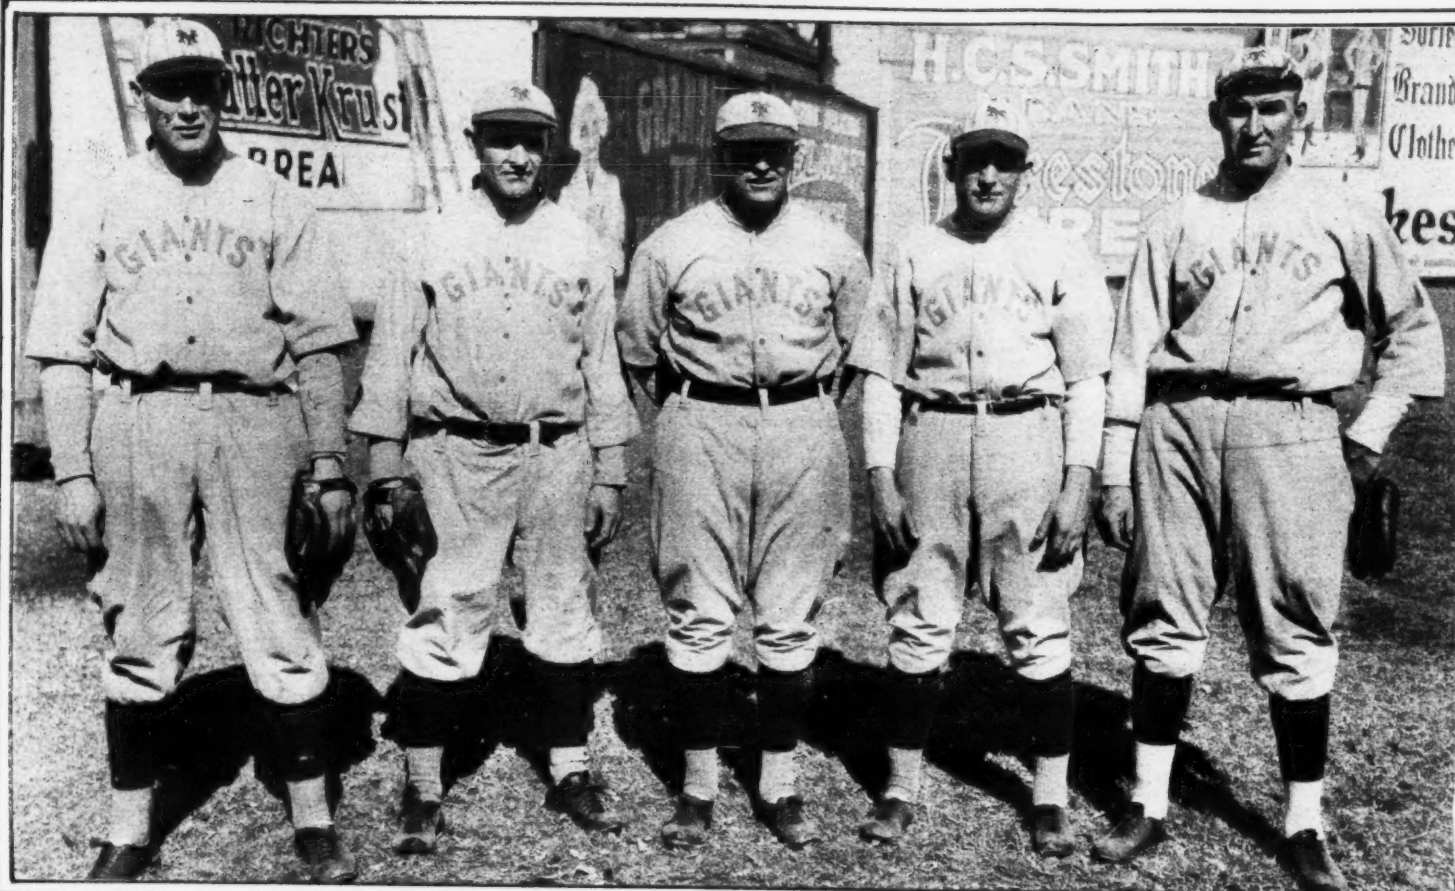

RAPID RESTORATION OF SAME TOWN, WHENCE ALL TRACE OF WAR HAS BEEN OBLITERATED

The Russian occupation of East Prussia that took place in the late Fall and early Winter of 1914 was not long maintained, and the invaders were driven back by the great successes attained by the Germans under Hindenburg at the Mazurian Lakes. Following the Russian retreat the work of restoration was begun, and how completely it has been accomplished is shown by these neat streets and substantial houses that are free from every suggestion of war's ravages.

Is it worth while?

WHEN you find that you tire easily, when happiness fails through headache, backache, nervousness—then ask yourself: "Is it worth while to wear harmful shoes?"

Physicians assert that the bad effects of wrongly shaped shoes are far-reaching. The unnatural posture induced by high heels throws the internal organs out of position. Resulting troubles often necessitate operations.

The woman who would be at her best and brightest will wear Cantilever Shoes. Their flexible arches, which conform to the natural action of the foot and allow the muscles free play, enable you to walk or stand correctly with minimum fatigue, and eliminate all danger of weak or fallen arches.

They stimulate—not retard—the circulation which brings to the cheeks a bewitching glow. They do not abuse the nerves which run from the feet up through the body even to the eyes. Knowing that your physical perfection starts with your feet, you can take satisfaction in the thought that your Cantilever Shoes conduce to your health and charm, your youthfulness and joy in living.

Good taste distinguishes every detail of Cantilever Shoes. They exemplify the fact that women and their shoes can be at once sensible and stylish.

If no dealer listed at the left is near you, write the Manufacturers, Morse & Burt Co., 11 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., for a Cantilever Shoe Booklet and the address of a near-by dealer.
